

WHY SHOULD I CARE ABOUT COPYRIGHT?

When creators receive compensation for their work and effort, they can continue to create interesting and inspiring content.

An increase in cultural and educational output benefits society as a whole.

The Irish Copyright
Licensing Agency CLG

The Irish Copyright Licensing Agency (ICLA) is a not-for-profit organisation working on behalf of Ireland's authors, visual creators and publishers to licence the use of their copyright works in return for fair compensation. It is mandatory for any educational establishment wishing to make multiple copies of copyright-protected works to have a licence. ICLA operates the only scheme in Ireland from which such a licence can be obtained.
